The coal goes out before it touches my tongue but the ravens still feed me it was laudanum that dulled Poe to the medicine in that poison—ever more within the bird’s prophecy and even, for the hungry-hearted: more, more, more from the black lobster claw of that ruthless beak